Stephen R. Koontz

January 2026

Address

Department of Agricultural & Resource Economics
266 Nutrien Agricultural Sciences Building
Colorado State University
Fort Collins, Colorado 80523-1172

Phone: 970/491-7032
Cell: 970/214-0661

E-Mail: Stephen.Koontz@ColoState.Edu

Education

Ph.D. degree in Agricultural Economics, University of Illinois, 1991.

Dissertation Title: Meatpacker Conduct, Oligopsony Power, and Live Cattle Price Dynamics

Dissertation Co-Advisors: Philip Garcia and Michael A. Hudson

M.S. degree in Agricultural Economics, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, 1985.

Thesis Title: Interaction Between the Cattle Feeding Sector and the Live Cattle Futures Market:
Implications to the Stability of Short-Run Cash Slaughter Cattle Prices

Thesis Advisor: Wayne D. Purcell

B.S. degree in Agricultural Economics, Cum Laude, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, 1983.

Experience

Professor, Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, Colorado State University, July 2013 – present.

Associate Professor, Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, Colorado State University, July 1999 – June 2013.

Assistant Professor, Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, Colorado State University, January 1998 – June 1999.

Assistant Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics, Michigan State University, January 1996 – December 1997.

Associate Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics, Oklahoma State University, July 1994 – December 1995.

Assistant Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics, Oklahoma State University, May 1989 – June 1994.

Graduate Fellow, Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Illinois, August 1985 – March 1989.

Graduate Research and Teaching Assistant, Department of Agricultural Economics, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, September 1983 – July 1985.

Description of Current Duties and Appointment Percentages

Current appointment is 4.5 months outreach and applied research (Extension), 3 months teaching (Resident Instruction), and 1.5 months research (Agricultural Experiment Station).

Outreach and applied research program is focused on agricultural commodity market and price analysis. Projects address four broad issues: 1) organization and performance in U.S. livestock and meat markets, 2) commodity market price behavior, analysis, and forecasting, 3) agribusiness firm behavior, organization, and analysis, and 4) price risk management strategies. Projects in-process and under development include:

- Measuring the influence of market structure and market participant conduct on price behavior in U.S. livestock and meat markets.
- Econometric modeling and forecasting of commodity prices.
- Price discovery process in national and regional livestock and meat markets.
- Impact of the thinning cash fed cattle trade on market performance.
- Analysis of alternative cattle and beef marketing, pricing, and communication institutions.
- Measurement of profit and price risk, and development of risk management strategies for use by commodity market participants.
- Evaluation of information sharing, profit incentives, and risk management components of different contracting arrangements and commodity alliances.
- Public good nature of government price reporting and information collection institutions.

Teaching duties involve three courses, graduate student advising, and undergraduate student mentoring. Courses taught include:

- Agricultural and Resource Economics / Economics 535: Applied Econometrics.
M.S. and Ph.D. level course. This applied econometrics course initiates students to the practice of econometrics in applied research emphasizing development of quantitative skills. Practicing applied econometrics involves understanding model development, specification, specification testing, data handling, hypothesis testing, interpretation, and use in applied economic problems.
- Agricultural and Resource Economics 419: Commodity Market Trading Experience.
Junior & Senior-level undergraduate course. This is an experiential learning course involving the simulated trade of commodity futures and options. It is team-taught with an industry expert. Students form trading teams and develop a trading plan for their commodity. Trades are pitched throughout the semester, performance is reported, and student teams develop signature work-like products for a sample commodity markets.
- Agricultural and Resource Economics 412: Agricultural Commodities Marketing.
Senior-level undergraduate course. This is a course on the principles and practice of commodity futures and options markets, hedging and options strategies for price risk management, fundamental and technical analysis of commodity markets, and concepts for understanding the economic purpose, and evaluating the performance of, futures and options markets. This course has been taught in a combined on-campus and online section since 2010.

Appointment History

2020 – 2022 – Colorado State University – three months applied research and outreach (Extension), four and one-half -months teaching (Resident Instruction), and one and one-half months research (Agricultural Experiment Station).

2012 – 2019 – Colorado State University – four and one-half months applied research and outreach (Extension), three-months teaching (Resident Instruction), and one and one-half months research (Agricultural Experiment Station).

5/2015 – 12/2017 – Colorado State University – Associate Department Head. This position coordinates annual faculty reviews and letters of progress for untenured faculty and coordinates department promotion and tenure reviews.

2008 – 2011 – Colorado State University – six-months applied research and outreach (Extension), and three-months teaching (Resident Instruction).

2007 – Colorado State University – six-months teaching (Resident Instruction), two-months research (Agricultural Experiment Station), one-month applied research and outreach (Extension).

2000 – 2006 – Colorado State University – Four-months applied research and outreach (Extension), three-months teaching (Resident Instruction) and two-months research (Agricultural Experiment Station).

1998 – 2000 – Colorado State University – Six-months applied research and outreach (Cooperative Extension Service) and three-months teaching (Resident Instruction).

1996 – 1997 – Michigan State University – Nine-months research (Agricultural Experiment Station) and three-months teaching (Resident Instruction).

1989 – 1995 – Oklahoma State University – Nine-months research (Agricultural Experiment Station) and three-months teaching (Resident Instruction).

Creative Works and Professional Presentations

a. Invited Presentations and Seminars

“The Value of Landsat Next.” Co-presenting with J.B. Loomis, Aravind Ravichandran, and Cori Kelly. Webinar and Project Final Presentation to USGS Leadership and Administration, August 30, 2024.

“Impact of Proposed Milk Pricing Policy Changes on the Colorado Dairy Industry.” Testimony before the USDA Administrative Law Judge in the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service Hearing on Federal Milk Marketing Order Proposed Changes. Indianapolis, Indiana, September 12, 2023.

“Structure in the Cattle and Beef Industry and the Need for Mandated Cash Market Participating Legislation.” Testimony before the U.S. Senate Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry Committee. Washington D.C., April 26, 2022.

“Hedging Crisis in Australian Sugar: Outline & Discussion.” Invited Discussion at the 3rd J.P. Morgan Center for Commodities International Commodities Symposium, Denver, Colorado, August 2019.

“Marketing Method Use in Trade of Fed Cattle: Causes of Thinning Cash Markets and Solutions.” Invited Paper Session, “What Should Be Done About Increasing Market Thinness?” at the American Applied Economics Association Meeting, San Francisco, California, August 2015.

“Summary of the Livestock and Meat Marketing Study and of Market Power Research in Fed Cattle Markets.” U.S. Department of Justice, Antitrust Division, Washington, D.C., June 2010.

“Impact of Right-of-First Refusal on Fed Cattle Markets: Results from an Economic Experiment.” Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics Seminar Series, Colorado State University, November 2009.

“Ethanol and the Corn Market.” Department of Animal Sciences Seminar, Colorado State University, April 2007.

“Commodity Markets and Biofuels: What Impacts Are Here Now and What Are Coming?” Invited Presentation at the Colorado State University Research Colloquium, Biofuels: Challenges and Opportunities, Office of the Vice President of Research, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado, April 2007.

“Market Integration and Vertical and Spatial Price Transmission in Agricultural Markets: Discussion.” Invited Presentation at the Market Integration and Vertical and Spatial Price Transmission in Agricultural Markets Symposium, University of Kentucky, Lexington, April 2006.

“Beef and Pork Market Economics and Outlook.” Invited Presentation for CoBank Management at the Livestock and Protein Sector Symposium, CoBank, Denver, Colorado, October 2003.

“Livestock Demand: Perspective and New Developments.” Invited Presentation at the 2001 Spring Industry Outlook Conference. Copper Mountain, Colorado, April 8, 2001.

“Consolidation and Market Concentration: Research Results and Research Needs.” Invited Presentation to the USDA National Agricultural Research, Education, Extension, and Economics Advisory Board. Washington D.C., March 20, 2001.

“Cattle and Beef Market Fundamentals.” Presentation at the Texas A&M University Extension Service Master Marketer Workshops, Vernon and Abilene, Texas, February 2001.

“How are Grids Changing the Fed Cattle Marketplace?” Presentation at the Robert E. Taylor Beef Symposium, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado, December 2000.

“Market Economics of Changing Beef Growth Promotant Regimes.” Invited Paper, American Society of Animal Scientists Annual Meetings, Baltimore, Maryland, July 2000.

“Livestock and Meat-Product Market Economics.” Two-day education program for commodity brokers studying for the Series 3 Broker License. Sponsored by and conducted at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Chicago, Illinois, June 20-21, 2000.

“The State of Colorado Agriculture.” Presentation before the Board of Directors of the Denver Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Fort Collins, Colorado, May 2000.

“Concentration, Competition, and the Structure of Agriculture.” Testimony before the U.S. Senate Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry Committee. Washington D.C., April 27, 2000.

“Beef Demand and Market Outlook.” Presentation for buyers participating in the Certified Angus Beef Program Specialists Seminar. Napa Valley, California, February 2000.

“Beef Marketing and Demand.” Presentation for producers participating the Partners for Quality Program. Harris Ranch, Coalinga, California, February 2000.

“Strategies and Issues for Marketing Cows and Bulls.” Presentation at the 1999 National Cattlemen’s Beef Association, National Market Cow and Bull Beef Quality Audit Strategy Workshop, Denver, Colorado, December 1999.

“Accuracy of USDA Fed Cattle Price Reporting: Is Mandatory Price Reporting Needed?” Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics Seminar Series, Colorado State University, September 1999.

“The Status of the U.S. Hog and Pork Industry.” Presentation for South and Central American pork producers and wholesalers touring the U.S., sponsored by the U.S. Meat Export Federation, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado, September 14, 1999.

“Accuracy of USDA Fed Cattle Price Reporting: Is Mandatory Price Reporting Needed?” Midwestern, Great Plains, and Western Outlook Conference, Colorado Springs, Colorado, August 1999.

“Livestock and Meat-Product Market Economics.” Day-long education program for commodity brokers studying for the Series 3 Broker License. Sponsored by and conducted at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Chicago, Illinois, June 29, 1999.

“Marketing in the Next Millennium.” Presentation at the Tri-State Cow/Calf Symposium, St. Francis, Kansas, February 1999.

“The State of the Beef Industry.” Presentation at the Muscle to Meat: A Symposium Featuring Innovative Technologies and Concepts in the Beef Industry, Program developed and sponsored by Pfizer Animal Health. Billings, Montana, January 1999.

“A Vision for Future Marketing of Beef.” Presentation at the Robert E. Taylor Beef Symposium, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado, December 1998.

“Impact of Captive Supplies and Marketing Agreements on Fed Cattle Prices: Results from an Economic Experiment.” Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics Seminar Series, Colorado State University, November 1998.

“Price Discovery: Overall Issues and Why Our Markets Are at Risk.” Invited Presentation at the Price Discovery in Concentrated Livestock Markets, a national conference conducted by the Research Institute on Livestock Pricing, Kansas City, Missouri. February 1997.

Interviewed by Steve Suther for Article, “Captive Information,” an article on the results of the USDA P&SA study of captive supplies. Published in Beef Today, Vol. 13, No. 2, February 1997, pp. 8-9.

“Arbitrage Costs Between Regional Fed Cattle Markets.” Seminar before the Department of Finance and Department of Rural Economy, University of Alberta, Edmonton. September 1996.

“A Summary of Results from the 1996 USDA Packers and Stockyards Concentration Study.” Invited Presentation before the Midwest Outlook Conference, East Lansing, Michigan. August 1996.

“The U.S. and USDA Agricultural Commodity and Product Information Systems.” Invited Presentation before a Delegation from the People’s Republic of Chinese at Michigan State University. July 1996.

b. Organized Symposia

Koontz, S.R., and W.D. Purcell. “Research Programs to Address Price Discovery Concerns.” Participant in the Organized Symposium, “Price Discovery in Livestock Markets: What is the Role of Public Universities.” Western Agricultural Economics Association Meetings, Vancouver, British Columbia, June 2000.

Koontz, S.R. “Tenderness Based Beef Marketing: An Economist’s Perspective.” Participant in the Organized Symposium, “Tenderness Based Beef Marketing.” American Society of Animal Science Meeting, Nashville, Tennessee, July 1997.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “The Fed Cattle Market Simulator.” Participant in the Organized Symposium, “Use of Computer Simulations in Undergraduate Agricultural Economics and Agribusiness Education.” American Agricultural Economics Association Meetings, San Diego, California, August 1994.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “The Packer/Feeder Agribusiness Market Simulator.” Participant in the Organized Symposium, “Classroom Experiential Learning: Examples and Experiences.” Southern Agricultural Economics Association Meetings, Tulsa, Oklahoma, February 1993.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “The Fed Cattle Market Simulator: Research and Teaching Through Experimental Economics.” Free Session Organizer and Participant, American Agricultural Economics Association Meetings, Manhattan, Kansas, August 1991.

c. Computer Software

Project Title: The Meatpacking Plant Management Simulator. Cooperators: J.N. Trapp, D.S. Peel, C.E. Ward, and S.R. Koontz. The computer program developed in this project incorporates economic structure and management decisions representative of a meatpacking facility. The management decisions are similar to those made by many food processing agribusinesses. Project objective is to use the simulator for experiential learning exercises in teaching and adult education.

Project Title: The Fed Cattle Market Simulator. Cooperators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. The computer program developed in this project incorporates economic structure representative of the cattle feeding-meatpacking complex. Project objectives are to: 1) use the simulator for experiential learning exercises in teaching and adult education; 2) conduct controlled economic experiments on vertical integration, forward contracting, industry consolidation, and price discovery.

Project Title: A Computerized Commodity Futures Trading Simulator. Developer: S.R. Koontz. The simulator provides students with a realistic learning experience about commodity futures contract trading. Specific objectives include: 1) development of a computerized system which incorporates realistic facets of futures trading; 2) development of a teaching tool to illustrate procedures for futures trading, and which illustrate trading strategy development and implementation; 3) development of a teaching tool which minimizes data input and administrative time.

d. Poster Sessions

Pritchett, J., C.H. Davidson, and S.R. Koontz. “Ammonia Emission BMP’s for Livestock Feeding: Identifying Benefits and Barriers to Adoption.” American Applied Economics Association, Canadian Agricultural Economics Society, and Western Agricultural Economics Association Joint Annual Meetings, Denver Colorado, July 2010.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “The Fed Cattle Market Simulator.” Teaching Award Poster, Southern Agricultural Economics Association Annual Meeting, Tulsa, Oklahoma, February 1993.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “Experimental Market Simulator: Integrating Research, Teaching, and Extension.” Selected Poster, Southern Agricultural Economics Association Annual Meeting, Fort Worth, Texas, February 1991. Abstract published in Southern Journal of Agricultural Economics 23(July 1991): 272.

Koontz, S.R., D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. “Experimental Market Simulator: Integrating Research, Teaching, and Extension.” Poster Session at the Oklahoma Cooperative Extension Service Annual Conference, Oklahoma State University, January 1991.

Grants and Contracts

USDA National Institute of Food and Agriculture – Agriculture and Food Research Initiative Sustainable Agricultural Systems. “Using Smart Foodscapes to Enhance the Sustainability of Western Rangelands.” Amount $6.8 million – Institutions include Utah State University, University of North Carolina at Pembroke, University of Florida, Oregon State University, and Colorado State University. Amount: $1.2 million. Colorado State University Department of Agricultural & Resource Economics Amount $151,785. Project Duration: 9/2021 – 8/2026.

U.S. Department of Interior-U.S. Geological Survey. “Advancing Methods for Estimating the Economic Value of and Assessing User Preferences for Nonmarket Remotely Sensed Information.” Principle Investigators: J.B. Loomis and S.R. Koontz. Amount: $132,000. Project Duration: 7/2017-6/2019.

U.S. Department of Interior-U.S. Geological Survey. “Explaining and Forecasting National Park Service Visitation.” Principle Investigator: S.R. Koontz. Amount: $65,000. Project Duration: 7/2016-6/2018.

American Veterinary Medical Association. “Development of a Master of Science Program in Agricultural Economics with a Specialization in Veterinary Economics.” Principle Investigators: S.R. Koontz, W.M. Frasier, and J. Hadrich. Amount: $300,000. Project Duration: 4/2016- 6/2018.

National Cattlemen’s Beef Association. “The Quality of Price Discovery in U.S. Fed Cattle Markets: How Thin is too Thin and Policy Recommendations.” Principle Investigator: S.R. Koontz. Amount: $150,000. Project Duration: 5/2013-8/2015.

United States Department of Agriculture / Grain Inspection and Packers and Stockyards Administration. “Livestock and Meat Marketing Study.” Contributed to the Fed Cattle and Beef Industries and Downstream Industries portions of the project proposal which also encompassed the Hogs and Pork Industry and Sheep and Lamb Industry. Grant and Project Coordinator: RTI International, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina. Total Grant Amount: $4.3 million. Project Duration: 7/2004-2/2007.

United States Department of Agriculture / Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service / Center for Economics of Animal Health. “Animal Industry Insurance Products Conference and Textbook.” Principle Co-Investigators: S.R. Koontz and D.L. Hoag. Amount: $39,312. Project Duration: 9/2002-8/2003.

United States Department of Agriculture / Risk Management Administration / Western Center for Risk Management Education & Washington State University Cooperative Extension. “Risk Management Training for Western Livestock Producers – Offered by the Western Livestock Research & Extension Coalition.” Project Coordinators: D. Osgood, T. Teegerstrom, R. Tronstad, University of Arizona, D. Hoag, D. Kaan, S. Koontz, R. Sharp, J. Tranel, Colorado State University, C.W. Gray, University of Idaho, W. Riggs, University of Nevada, D. Bailey, B. Godfrey, Utah State University, C. Bastian, and J. Hewlett, University of Wyoming. Amount: $76,543. Project Duration: 7/2002-6/2002.

United States Department of Agriculture / Cooperative State Research Extension and Education Service. Risk Management Education Challenge Grant. “A Risk Education Simulation / Game.” Principle Co-Investigators: D.L. Hoag, J. Hewlett, and S.R. Koontz. Amount: $99,073. Project Duration: 1/2002-12/2003.

National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "Is Carcass Quality and Tenderness Affected by Repetitive Use of Hormonal Implants throughout a Beef Animals' Lifetime?" Principle Co-Investigators: K.E. Belk, W.J. Platter, J.D. Tatum, G.C. Smith, and S.R. Koontz. Amount: $52,500. Project Duration: 1/2001-12/2002.

National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "Are Cooked Beef Palatability Traits and the Price Consumers Will Pay for Beef Affected by Repetitive Use of Hormonal Implants Throughout a Beef Animal's Life." Principle Co-Investigators: W.J. Platter, K.E. Belk, J.D. Tatum, S.R. Koontz, and G.C. Smith. Amount: $246,900.

Farm Foundation. "Integrated Risk Management Education and Information for Agricultural Managers and Educators in the Western United States." Project funding the Western Extension Farm Management Committee and the Western Extension Marketing Committee. Project Coordinators: J.P. Hewlett, University of Wyoming, and S.R. Koontz, Colorado State University. Amount: $18,000. Project Duration: 3/2000 – 2/2001.

National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "Implementing and Assessing the Economic Returns of EPDs for Carcass Traits, Warner Bratzler Shear Force, and DNA Tenderness Markers of Cattle to Improve Tenderness and Consistency of Beef." Principal Co-Investigators: Michael E. Dikeman, Kansas State University, Department of Animal Sciences and Industry; John Pollak, Cornell University, Department of Animal Science; Ronnie D. Green, Colorado State University, Department of Animal Sciences; Jerry Taylor and Scott Davis, Texas A&M University, Department of Animal Science; and Stephen R. Koontz, Colorado State University, Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. Amount: $495,250. Project Duration: 4/1/1998 – 9/30/2001.

United States Department of Agriculture / Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service. Fund for Rural America, Center Planning Grant. "Center for an Innovative and Coordinated Beef System in the Eastern Corn Belt." Project Director: Ronald P. Lemenager. Project Co-Directors: Michael D. Boehlje, John T. Johns, Stephen R. Koontz, Floyd K. McKeith, and Harlan D. Ritchie. Amount: $25,000. Project Duration: 9/1/97 – 2/29/98.

Michigan State University Animal Initiative Coalition. "Michigan Cattlemen's Association and Michigan State University Farm-to-Fab Program: Obtaining Data Critical to the Michigan Beef Alliance." Principle Investigator: Joel Cowley. Collaborators: Steven Rust, Stephen R. Koontz, and Mark McCully. Amount: $8,400. Project Duration: 7/1/97 – 6/30/98.

United States Department of Agriculture / Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service. Challenge Grants Program. "An Experiential Learning Tool for Teaching Food Processing Firm Management." Cooperators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $79,995. Project Duration: 10/1/96 – 9/30/98.

Excel Corporation. "Development of a Meatpacking Plant Management Simulation Model." Cooperators: Trapp, J.N., S.R. Koontz, H.G. Dolezal, D.S. Peel, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $15,312. Project Duration: 9/1/95 – 6/30/96.

Research Institute on Livestock Pricing, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. "Estimating the Value of Public Information and Public Information Impacts on the Fed Cattle Market: An Experimental Economics Approach." Principal Co-Investigators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $14,150. Project Duration: 7/1/95 – 6/30/97.

Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station Targeted Research Initiative, Oklahoma State University. “Cattle Feeding Profitability: Opportunities and Risk Management Alternatives.” Principal Co-Investigators: S.R. Koontz and J.N. Trapp. Amount: $25,000. Project Duration: 7/1/94 – 6/30/95.

Chicago Mercantile Exchange. “Developing the Futures Market Component of The Fed Cattle Market Simulator.” Cooperators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $12,578. Project Duration: 7/1/93 – 6/30/94.

University Computer Center and the Office of the Vice-President of Research, Oklahoma State University. Grant for Research Computing Time. “Definition of Regional Cattle Procurement Markets,” and “Sources and Structure of Profit Risk in Cattle Feeding.” Principal Investigator: S.R. Koontz. Computer Funds Awarded: $40,000. Project Duration: 10/92 – 12/93.

United States Department of Agriculture / Packers and Stockyards Administration. “Definition of Regional Cattle Procurement Markets and the Role of Captive Supplies in Beef Packing.” Principal Co-Investigators: S.R. Koontz, C.E. Ward, M.L. Hayenga, T.C. Schroeder, and A.P. Barkley. Amount: $203,592. Project Duration: 9/29/92 – 9/28/94.

Oklahoma State University Center for Effective Instruction, Curriculum Innovation Grant. “Development of a Computerized Commodity Futures and Options Trading Simulator.” Director: S.R. Koontz. Amount: $2,900. Project Duration: 9/91 – 9/92.

United States Department of Agriculture / Cooperative State Research Service. Challenge Grants Program. “Development of an Agribusiness Market Simulator for Teaching.” Cooperators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $71,010. Project Duration: 10/1/91 – 9/30/93.

Oklahoma State University Center for Effective Instruction, Curriculum Innovation Grant. “Developing an Experimental Economic Teaching Simulator: An Application to Beef Marketing and Meat Processing.” Cooperators: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Amount: $500. Project Duration: 9/90 – 3/91.

Major Outside Activities

Consultant for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. Provided expertise in legal challenge of USDA Grain Inspection Packers and Stockyards Administration Proposed Rules. October 2010 – April 2012.

Consultant for Applied Economic Research Corporation, Econsult Corporation, and RTI International. Member of the Beef Team participating in the USDA GIPSA, Livestock and Meat Marketing Study. The project examines the impact of alternative marketing arrangements, or non-cash market transactions, on the cash market. Responsible for methodology development, data analysis, and report writing for the technical portions of the project. Also responsible for interviewing producers, packers, and downstream firms for opinion portions of project. July 2004 – January 2007.

Consultant for ContiBeef of Boulder, Colorado. ContiBeef is the largest cattle feeding operation in the U.S. based on feedyard capacity. Statistical modelling services are performed for ContiBeef. Models were developed to predict animal performance in commercial feeding systems and rank individual feedlot performance across the division. March 2001 – July 2002.

Consultant for AgriBusiness Group of Indianapolis, Indiana. ABG is an education and training firm which services agriculture related industries. I was one of several facilitators for two-day Agricultural Risk Management Workshops conducted by ABG for John Deere clientele. Workshops were conducted in the Midwest and Great Plains states. January 2000 – March 2000.

Consultant for eMerge Interactive of Broomfield, Colorado. eMerge is a firm which provides data analysis and information for commercial agricultural producers. Statistical modelling services are performed for eMerge. Models were developed to predict animal performance in commercial feeding systems. May 1999 – February 2000.

Consultant for Vantage Point Network of Fort Collins, Colorado. Vantage Point is a firm owned in part by John Deere and Farmland Industries. Vantage Point develops agricultural decision-making software products. These products are in the process of being developed, marketed, and integrated onto the Internet. I wrote information about commodity futures markets, futures exchanges, and technical trading tools for the company's web pages. August 1999 – September 1999.

Consultant for Excel Corporation (Excel) of Wichita, Kansas; Caprock Industries (Caprock) of Amarillo, Texas; Koch Industries of Wichita, Kansas; ContiBeef of Boulder, Colorado, and Hoechst Roussell of Warren, New Jersey. Excel is the third largest beefpacker in the U.S. based on annual sales and capacity. The business name for Excel has changed to Cargill Meat Solutions. Caprock is the fourth-largest cattle feeding business in the U.S. based on feedyard capacity. Both Excel and Caprock are owned by Cargill, Inc., the world's largest grain company. Koch Industries is a U.S. business formerly with interests in cattle feeding. Koch Industries owned the tenth-largest cattle feeding operation in the U.S. based on feedyard capacity. Koch Industries is no longer in the cattle feeding business. ContiBeef is formerly one of the world's largest grain companies and its cattle feeding division is the largest cattle feeding operation in the U.S. based on feedyard capacity. The business name for ContiBeef has changed to Five Rivers Ranch. Hoechst Roussell is one of the world's largest pharmaceutical companies and is a major participant in the North American animal health industry. Hoechst Roussell supplies almost all commercial cattle feeding operations with growth promotants. Activities with all five of these organizations involve preparation and delivery of seminar material and use of The Fed Cattle Market Simulator, developed with D.S. Peel, J.N.

Trapp, and C.E. Ward. The purpose of the activities is to cross-train personnel within each company. Training sessions teach feedlot management, cattle procurement, meat sales, and packing plant management personnel basic economic and business concepts combined with interpersonal negotiation skills. Work with Cargill Meat Solutions was ongoing and work with Five Rivers Ranch was periodic. Work with others was on demand. October 1992 – October 2009.

Consultant for Professional Cattle Consultants (PCC) of Weatherford, Oklahoma. PCC is a firm which provides market information to commercial cattle feeders. Statistical modelling and economic forecasting services are performed for PCC. Econometric models were developed to forecast information revealed in USDA reports and conditions in the cattle feeding industry based on data available from PCC membership. Forecasts are used by PCC to provide marketing and pricing advice to professional cattle feeding operations. Statistical analyses of cattle feeding profits and performance data were conducted for PCC. June 1991 – December 1996.

Extension Program Activities

Extension responsibilities: my faculty position at Colorado State University is the first I have held which included a formal extension appointment. While I have not held such an appointment in previous positions, I support the Land Grant University mission of integrated research, teaching and extension programs, and I perceive that interaction with industry members and formal involvement in extension programs improves my research and teaching programs.

Current applied research and outreach activities are in three program areas. Other activities are in two areas that are no longer active.

a. Commodity Market and Price Analysis Activities

Activities in this area focus on providing information and educational material to area agribusiness management specialists, interacting with agricultural producer groups, and agricultural and agribusiness industry associations. My primary responsibilities and activities in this area include: development and delivery of outlook material focused on Colorado agricultural commodities, analysis and commentary on agricultural commodity market events, and synthesis and use of scholarly research on agricultural markets in a program of economic education.

Specific activities and presentations include:

- Participation in the development of a Risk Management Education Needs Assessment Survey to be administered to Colorado and Wyoming producers during the winter of 1998. Results of the survey will be used by the Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana Risk Management Extension Working Group to direct extension activities.

- “Risk Management Tools – Marketing Risk” presentation for agricultural producers participating in the half-day program “Risk Management Tools for Agriculture.” Greeley, Colorado, January 1998.

d. Extension Activities Based on The Fed Cattle Market Simulator

The Fed Cattle Market Simulator was conducted as a role-playing exercise in a seminar or meeting setting with various groups and organizations under various formats. The faculty team involved in this project is: S.R. Koontz, D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. This program was national in scope and was used extensively within the state of Oklahoma. I participated in this program with faculty at Oklahoma State University since 1991. I participated in activities within the state of Oklahoma when I was on faculty at Oklahoma State University and I have participated in the national activities. The program is currently inactive.

Intensive two-day seminars have been conducted with agribusiness professionals. The seminar focuses on cross-training participants through the experiential learning exercise. In this seminar, participants learn the importance of basic economics and business principles, introduce advanced topics about marketing and markets, discuss the current beef industry structure and future directions, and emphasize the importance of personal relationships and ethics in business.

e. Integrated Resource Management (IRM) Program Activities

Activities in this area involve providing economic expertise to area agribusiness management specialists, extension agents, and university faculty involved with state based IRM efforts. I participated in activities of this program on an ad hoc basis. This program is currently inactive.

My primary activities in this program included: providing institutional and economic knowledge with respect to the meat and food processing industries, livestock production industries, marketing practices, and development of industry alliances.

Specific activities involved working under the two main activities detailed in the Fund for Rural America grant project: “Community-Based Livestock Integrated Resource Management.” This project works with agricultural community groups in Sterling, Colorado, and Montrose/Delta, Colorado. Applied research and outreach programs were part of this project.

- Applied expertise in the food processing industry to help the Montrose/Delta group explore alternatives for processing and marketing beef cattle. Summer 1998 – Summer 2000.
- Applied expertise in marketing methods and institutions to help the Sterling group explore alternative methods of production and marketing alternatives for beef cattle producers. Summer 1998 – Summer 2000.

Specific organized presentations coordinated through this project include:

- “Managing Economic Risks: Marketing.” Portion of half-day Second Annual Nick Petry Workshop program in cooperation with the National Western Stock Show and participating with D.L. Hoag, J. Whittier, R. Roth, R. Sharp, J. Tranel, and D. Kaan. The workshop was entitled, “Understanding and Managing Your Ranch in an Uncertain Time.” Denver, Colorado, January 2001.
- “Beef Cattle Marketing.” Evening-long program presented with D.L. Hoag, D. Kaan, and J. Walker. Sterling, Colorado, June 1999.

Teaching Program Activities

a. Courses developed and taught

Colorado State University

Agricultural and Resource Economics 535: Applied Econometrics.

M.S. and beginning Ph.D. level course: I taught this course during Fall 2003-2006 semesters, Spring 2008-2009 semester, and Fall 2009-2025 semesters. Median enrollment is 16 students. The course objective was to expose students to the basics of econometric methods. Emphasis was placed on estimation, hypothesis testing, modeling building, model specification, and use of econometric model results. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to expose students to a breadth of topics and computer software packages, and a term paper to encourage detailed thinking on research problem development, model specification and interpretation. Emphasis is also placed on communicating the research process that uses data and evidence through falsification to develop science-based knowledge. Formal student evaluations for Fall 2018 semester rated overall instruction 4.86 and the overall course 4.71 (on a 5.0 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 4.52 and 4.53 (on a 5.0 scale), over the course history. Current evaluations no longer ask students to specifically rate courses or instructors.

Agricultural and Resource Economics 419: Commodity Market Trading Experience.

Senior-level undergraduate course: course taught Spring semesters since Spring 2020. Median enrollment is 15 students. Team taught with Adjunct Professor Jordan Levi of Arcadia Capital Management. The purpose of this course is to provide students with an experiential learning opportunity to analyze and trade commodity markets as investment and risk management tools. The course will detail institutions associated with futures and options trading. The course is a synthesis of underlying economic information and market price behavior patterns to develop cohesive and successful trading plans. Students will make use of technical analysis and fundamental analysis to manage (synthetic) futures and options trades. Students will develop and back-test trading strategies. Students will be expected to work in teams, conduct independent research, communicate and justify decision making to other teams and the instructors. Students will interact with industry professionals through guest speakers and video conferences. Informal student feedback is excellent.

Agricultural and Resource Economics 412: Agricultural Commodities Marketing.

Senior-level undergraduate course: I taught this course during the Spring 1998 and Fall 1998-2025 semesters. Median enrollment is 38 students. The course objective is to expose students to the basics of commodity futures and options markets. Emphasis was placed on the mechanics of futures trading, fundamental and technical aspects of commodity price variation, marketing strategies, market regulation, and performance of commodity futures markets. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to communicate concept and technique details, simulated futures trading through a computer game, and price risk management through a marketing simulation game. Formal student evaluations for Fall 2018 rated overall instruction 4.86 and the overall course 4.71 (on a 5.00 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 4.52 and 4.53 (on a 5.0 scale), over the course history. Current evaluations no longer ask students to specifically rate courses or instructors.

Agricultural and Resource Economics 635: Econometric Theory I.

Ph.D. level course: I taught this course during Spring 2008 and 2009. Enrollment was 10 and 15 students.

The course objective was to expose students to econometric theory. The integration with theoretical statistics was emphasized. Topics included derivation and properties of estimators, alternative hypothesis testing methods, and asymptotic theory. Teaching methods involved lecture methods, reading and discussing published articles in both economic fields and econometric theory and methods, and writing GAUSS programs to integrate theory and practice. Average ratings for instruction and the course are 4.1 and 3.9 (on a 5.0 scale).

Agricultural and Resource Economics 510: Agricultural Product Marketing.

M.S. and beginning Ph.D. level course: I taught this course during the Spring 1998, Fall 1999-2001, and Spring 2005-2008 semesters for a total of eight times. Median enrollment is seven students. This is a course in applied agricultural commodity market analysis. The main objective of the course was to initiate students in the practice of reading and conducting applied agricultural marketing research. The process involves understanding and integrating economic theory, analytical methods, and problem-solving methodology. Topics included price determination methods, price discovery processes, commodity marketing institutions, and industrial organization and competition for agricultural products in U.S. domestic and international markets. Teaching method involves lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to expose students to a breadth of topics and analytical tools, discussion of readings, and a term paper to encourage detailed thinking on a researchable problem. Formal student evaluations for Spring 2008 rated overall instruction 5.0 and the overall course 5.0 (on a 5.0 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 4.4 and 4.5 (on a 5.0 scale), over the course history.

Michigan State University

Agricultural Economics 835: Introductory Econometrics.

M.S. and beginning Ph.D. level course: I taught this course during Summer 1996 and 1997 semesters. Formal enrollments were 9 and 15 students with 11 and 17 attending lectures. The course objective was to expose students to the basics of econometric methods. Emphasis was placed on estimation, hypothesis testing, modelling building, model specification, and use of econometric model results. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to expose students to a breadth of topics and computer software packages, and a term paper to encourage detailed thinking on research problem development, model specification and interpretation. Formal student evaluations for Summer 1996 and 1997 semesters rated overall instruction 4.8 and 4.7, and the overall course 4.7 and 4.7 (on a 5.0 scale).

Food Systems Management 443: Food Industry and Cooperative Marketing.

Senior-level undergraduate course: I taught this course once during the Spring 1997 semester. Enrollment was 17 students. The course objective was to cover topics of industrialization, food and agribusiness industrial organization, cooperatives and alternative marketing institutions, and contract marketing. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to communicate concept and technique details, guest speakers, a term paper where students research a market or industry of their interest, and an experiential role-playing exercise where students interacted as businesses in a commodity market. Formal student evaluations for Spring 1997 rated overall instruction 4.1 and the overall course 4.3 (on a 5.0 scale).

Oklahoma State University

Agricultural Economics 4333: Commodity Futures Markets.

Senior-level undergraduate course: I taught this course each spring semester from 1990 through 1995, for a total of six times. Median enrollment was 35 students. The course objective was to expose students to the basics of commodity futures and options markets. Emphasis was placed on the mechanics of futures trading, fundamental and technical aspects of commodity price variation, marketing strategies, market regulation, and performance of commodity futures markets. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, use of problem sets to communicate concept and technique details, guest speakers, simulated futures trading through a computer game, and price risk management through a marketing simulation game. Formal student evaluations for Spring 1995 rated overall instruction 3.83 and the overall course 3.75 (on a 4.00 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 3.50 and 3.54 (on a 4.0 scale), over the six-semester history.

Agricultural Economics 3203: Agricultural Price Analysis.

Junior-level undergraduate course: I taught this course each fall semester from 1989 through 1995, for a total of seven times. Median enrollment was 40 students. The course objective was to introduce the student to economic theory, mathematical and statistical methods, and data sources for the analysis of agricultural price movements with an emphasis on understanding the factors creating price variation. Teaching method involved lectures on conceptual material, presentation of market information relevant to current outlook for multiple commodities and use of problem sets for emphasis of concepts and methods. Formal student evaluations for Fall 1995 rated overall instruction 3.64 and the overall course 3.38 (on a 4.00 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 3.06 and 3.11, over the seven-semester history.

Agricultural Economics 3990: Special Problems in Agricultural Economics – The Fed Cattle Market Simulator.

Junior and senior-level course: I team taught this course each spring semester from 1990 through 1995, for a total of six times, five with a formal course evaluation. Typical enrollment was 40 students and the course was team taught with D.S. Peel, J.N. Trapp, and C.E. Ward. Students' roleplay in a computerized experimental market to simulate the interaction between cattle feeding and meatpacking operations. The course requires students to integrate economic and business theory concepts of marginal costs, scale economies, and inventory management, with market analysis abilities and interpersonal communication skills. Formal student evaluations for Spring 1995 rated overall instruction 3.34 and the overall course 3.48 (on a 4.00 scale). Average ratings for instruction and the course are 3.32 and 3.54, over the five-semester history.

Research Program Activities – Experiment Station Projects

Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station. Principal Investigator, MAES Hatch Project Number MICL01876. “Organization, Coordination, and Performance of U.S. Livestock and Meat Industries.” Duration: 1/1/96 – 12/31/97.

The general objective is to evaluate the evolving organization of the U.S. livestock and meat industry, identify linkages between the changing organization, the types and effectiveness of coordination, and the level of performance in the markets. Specific objectives and approach include: 1) Measure the competitiveness of industry member conduct including short-term pricing, intermediate-term price and quantity, and long-run entry and exit decisions made by members of this sector, and measure the impacts on market performance. 2) Study of the price discovery process in regional livestock, wholesale meat, and related futures markets. Determine whether changes in grades and standards will improve price discovery and market performance. 3) Determine the effects of contracting and other direct trade practices on price formation and market performance. 4) Evaluate information sharing, profit incentives, and risk management components of different contracting arrangements and livestock alliances.

Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station. Principal Investigator, OAES Project Number Hatch-2147. “Evaluating Market Organization and Performance in the U.S. Cattle and Beef Industry.” Duration: 4/10/91 – 12/31/96.

Project Objectives: To evaluate the evolving organization of the U.S. cattle and beef industry and identify linkages between the changing organization and the level of performance in the markets. Specific objectives include: 1) Evaluate the competitiveness of industry member conduct including short-term pricing, intermediate-term price and quantity, and long-run entry and exit decisions made by members in this sector, and measure the impacts on market performance. 2) Compare the timing and extent of interactions between cattle and beef cash and futures markets in the price discovery process. 3) Determine performance of livestock futures with respect to contract delivery specifications, the effects of futures trading on the variability of cash prices, and the general efficiency of the market in incorporating information on future supply and demand. 4) Analyze the effects of contracting and other direct trade practices, where information may be held asymmetrically, on price formation and market performance.
